

What is a PD&E Study?

A Project Development & Environment (PD&E) Study is a blending of engineering analysis, environmental analysis, and public involvement activities. The process is used by engineers and planners to determine the location and conceptual design of the preferred roadway improvements.

Project Process

